100
FARMERS WANTED TO BUY THE Buckeye Reaper,
With MILLER'S TABLE RAKE,
FOR THE SEASON OF 1877.

THIS Machine has been gradually gaining popularity until it now stands No. 1 as a COMBINED MACHINE. As a Reaper it has no equal; as a Mower it has no superior. Two drive wheels, no gearing on the main wheels; two Cutter Bars and three Knives go with each machine. The running gear of this machine is the same as the Dodge, except the frame, which is iron, making it more durable and stronger in every respect. In offering this machine to the farmer, we warrant it with a fair trial to do as good work as any other machine in the market, or no sale. Before buying don't forget to examine this machine carefully, and see the advantages it has over other machines that are called No. 1.
Read what the 11 binders at the Centennial reaper trial, Philadelphia, last summer, say—there having been forty-six reapers in the contest:
"We, the undersigned, bound after the Self Rake Reapers exhibited and operated at the Centennial field trial held on the farm of the Neshaminy Park Association, and unhesitatingly pronounce the BUCKEYE TABLE RAKE REAPER as the easiest Machine to bind after, it leaving the Grain in such even condition and compactness that it is as easy to bind three Sheaves after the Buckeye Table Rake as two after any other of the Self Rake Machines."
We refer to a few who bought this machine last season and saw it work:
HARRISON BEAMER, Mountpleasant twp.,
EPHRAIM BLAIR, " "
JOEL PALMER, " "

The MONITOR STEAM ENGINE. This is an upright portable engine. For safety from explosion and fire, ease of setting for work, economy in fuel and water, and ease of transportation, we ask an inspection of this engine before purchasing any other. Send or call for circulars.
White Water Wagon.
Equally as good, and cheaper than any in the market.
Ploughs of Different Makes.
Amongst them the MOUNTJOY, that has given such satisfaction in the past. SINGLE AND DOUBLE SHOVEL PLOUGHS, CULTIVATORS and FARM IMPLEMENTS generally.
Phosphate.
A No. 1 article. Reduced in price to compete with the times. $18.00 per ton at the warehouse.
Another article prepared expressly for corn and potatoes. Price $15.00.
Having had long experience in handling agricultural implements of all kinds and considerable in testing different kinds of fertilizers, will offer nothing unless I know it to be good and to give satisfaction.
Thankful for past patronage I ask my old customers and all others to give me a call and examine for themselves.
Samples can be seen at Wareroom of Wm. Biddle, formerly Bigham's, corner of Washington and Railroad Streets, opposite Wible's Warehouse. DON'T FORGET THE PLACE!

THE GERMAN WATCHMAN'S SONG.

FROM THE GERMAN.

Among the watchmen in Germany a singular custom prevails of chanting devotional hymns, as well as songs of national or amusing character, during the night, the several stanzas being chanted as the hours of the night are announced.

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of eight, good sirs, has struck.
Eight souls alone from death were kept
When God the earth with deluge swept.

Unless the Lord to guard us deign,
Man wakes and watches all in vain.
Lord! thro' Thine all-prevailing might,
Do Thou vouchsafe us a good night!

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of nine, good sirs, has struck.
Nine lepers cleansed returned not;
Be not thy blessings, man, forgot!

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of ten, good sirs, has struck.
Ten precepts show God's holy will;
O, may we prove obedient still!

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of eleven, good sirs, has struck.
Eleven apostles remained true;
May we be like that faithful few!

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of twelve, good sirs, has struck.
Twelve is of Time the boundary;
Man, think upon Eternity!

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of one, good sirs, has struck.
One God alone reigns over all;
Naught can without His will befall.

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of two, good sirs, has struck.
Two ways to walk has man been given;
Teach me the right, the path to heaven.

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of three, good sirs, has struck.
God three in one, exalted most,
The Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

Hark, while I sing!—our village clock
The hour of four, good sirs, has struck.
Four seasons crown the farmer's care;
Thy heart with equal toil prepare!

Up, up!—awake, nor slumber on!
The morn approaches, night is gone!
Thank God, who, by His power and might,
Has watched and kept us thro' the night.

The Doctor's Daughter.

"Dear, dear, how it rains!" said Hetty Wallis.

She had opened the door the least little bit in the world, to see if there was any prospect of its clearing up, but the rush of wind and rain that swept in the crevice compelled her to close it again almost instantaneously.

It was a little brown house, on the edge of the lonely Western forest—a brown house, with sloping eaves and a bay-winnow, and a dooryard full of roses, whose crimson clusters gleamed faintly in the late autumn twilight.

Doctor Wallis lived here—Doctor Wallis, who had come West, with his two daughters, scarcely six months ago, and who was the only physician in a radius of thirty good miles around.

Hetty stood by the fire, one foot on the fender, her dark, dreamy eyes fixed on the red glow of the burning logs. Sibyl, the other sister, lay luxuriously back in a cushioned easy-chair, waiting for the lamps to be lighted before she went on with the bit of Berlin woolwork in her lap.

Sibyl Wallis was a rosy cheeked, scarlet lipped beauty—one of those fair human flowers which, like the lilies of Solomon, are destined neither to toil nor to spin.

Doctor Wallis was a poor man, and kept no servants; but no one ever expected Sibyl to do any of the rough and disagreeable offices consequent upon housekeeping.

Sibyl dusted the parlors, kept the vases full of flowers, washed the tea-china, and "did up" her own pretty laces and pocket-handkerchiefs; and Hetty, the second daughter—a brown little elf, with jetty hair growing low on her forehead, and a colorless olive skin—cheerfully undertook the prosaic part of life, as if it were her natural inheritance.

"To think of poor papa out in all this tempest!" said Hetty, mournfully.

"Gentlemen don't mind such things," said Sibyl, serenely. "And, of course, it's just what a doctor must expect."

"Hush!" said Hetty, suddenly turning her head in a quick, bird-like fashion. "Some one is knocking at the back door."

"Perhaps you'd better go and see who it is," remarked Sibyl, serenely.

It was a man all wrapped up in oilskin, until nothing more than the tip of a very red nose was visible.

"Oh, I say, miss," said the dripping visitant, "where's the doctor?"

"He isn't in," said Hetty.

"Where's Doctor Wallis?" reiterated the man.

"He's out!" answered Hetty, speaking loud and distinctly, under the impression that the inquirer was deaf.

"It's Dakin's boy," said the man, "he's chokin' to death!"

"Oh!" said Hetty. "Croup, I suppose?"

"Don't know what it is," said the messenger. "Ain't no doctor myself. All I know is that I must bring back Doctor Wallis," with a nod at his lumber wagon at the gate.

"But you can't, if he is out," said Hetty.

The man stood a moment, shifting from one foot to the other, evidently in a quandary.

"I'm blamed if I know what to do," said he. "Well, I'll tell-ee what, miss! You just send the doctor on to Dakin's just as quick as he comes back. If Dakin's boy chokes to death, it ain't no fault of mine!"

And away rambled the wagon into the mist and twilight.

It had hardly disappeared when a little lad arrived with a note for Hetty.

"It's from papa," said Hetty, hurriedly opening it, and reading aloud the following brief message:

"DEAR GIRLS:—Old Eldwood is very bad, and I shall probably be detained all night. Lock up the house as usual, and don't expect me until I come.
Affectionately, H. W."

"Oh, dear!" said Hetty, blankly; "and what is to become of Dakin's child?"

"I never saw such a girl as you, Hetty," said lovely Sibyl, with a pettish contraction of the brows. "You're always shouldering other people's troubles. What is Dakin's child to us, I'd like to know?"

"But only think of it, Sibyl," said Hetty, clasping her hands—"a dear little baby suffocating to death, all for want of the simplest remedies!"

"We can't help it," said Sibyl, settling back composedly among her cushions.

"But I'm not so sure of that," said Hetty, briskly. "I know the remedies," and she put on a capacious water-proof cloak, and pulled the hood over her head.

"And you don't even know where these remedies are that papa uses for a case of croup, nor how to use them."

"Hetty," cried the elder sister, "are you crazy?"

"Crazy?" said Hetty. "No, I'm only ordinarily human. The child shan't die if I can help it."

She went to her father's drug closet, opened it, and took out several little vials.

"'Syrup ipecac,'" said Hetty, with a little nod of her head to each. "'Asafotida,' 'hive syrup,' Simple remedies, but very effectual if taken in time."

"But, Hetty," pleaded Sibyl, "you're never going to walk, nobody knows how far, in all the rain?"

"Yes, I am," said Hetty, buttoning on her cloak.

"You don't know where Dakin lives."

"Yes, I do. It's a big red brick house, just beyond the woods by the church. Papa showed it to me the other day."

"Full two miles away."

"I can't help that," said Hetty.

"And me all alone!"

Sibyl's voice grew plaintive.

"I can't help that, either," returned Hetty, a little impatiently. "But don't fret, Sib—I'll not be long."

And out the brave little girl walked into the tempestuous twilight, with her pockets full of medicine and the water-proof cloak buttoned snug around her.

Not until she had left the friendly lights of home far behind, and was lost in the black, rustling depths of the forest, where the dark boughs met over her head, and ghostly, whispering sounds, went through the dry leaves, did Hetty's valiant heart begin to quail.

Even then she would not admit to herself that she was in the least timid, but resolutely fixed her thoughts upon "Dakin's boy," suffocating to death with croup, and quickened her footsteps as she did so.

Darker and darker it grew—lonelier and lonelier; but Hetty pressed resolutely on, until drenched with rain and ready to drop with the fatigue of making her way through muddy roads against the wind, she knocked at the door of Squire Dakin's house.

An elderly woman opened it.

"Is it the doctor?" said she, eagerly.

"No," said Hetty; "but it's the doctor's daughter."

"Lord's sake alive!" said the woman, despairingly; "what good can you do, and him so mortal bad?"

"A great deal," said Hetty. "Let me come in, if you please. I understand my father's system of treatment, and I have some medicine here."

At this the woman stood back, motioning toward the stairway, and Hetty ran up and entered the sickroom with a confidence born of her womanly courage and kindness.

But it was no cradled babe or plump four-year-old who lay there. "Dakin's boy" was one and twenty at the very least, pale and handsome, with closed eyes, and a face set as if in mortal pain, as it lay on its pillow.

Hetty involuntarily recoiled.

"It—it isn't croup, then?" said she, clasping one of the little bottles in her hand.

"It's quinsy," said one of the attendants; "and it is a fatal case, I'm thinking."

And little Hetty, all her bravery oozing out, like Bob Acres' courage, at her finger ends, sat down behind the door, and began to cry.

The sick man opened his eyes—large, soft and dark they were, with long lashes—and asked faintly:

"Who is that?"

Hetty rose and came forward.

"It's me, the doctor's daugher," said she. "I—thought it was a little boy with the croup, and—"

"Don't cry," said he gently, "it will soon be over."

And he closed his eyes again, while poor Hetty cried harder than ever. An incipient case of croup she thought she could manage, but "quinsy" was entirely beyond the range of her capacities. She had never been in a death chamber before, and the hour and solemnity of the scene impressed her with a sense of vague terror.

Just then a brisk, heavy footstep sprung up the stairs, two at a time. There was a stir and commotion in the room.

"Oh, thank heaven!" cried Hetty, "it's papa."

Dr. Wallis it was. Released earlier than he expected from the other sick bed, he had returned home and learned from his eldest daughter Hetty's errand—and he was flushed and breathless from the haste he had made.

An hour later he came down to where Hetty sat on the lowest stair, pale and anxious.

"Papa," said she, "how is he?"

"Better, my dear. Doing well. But it was an even chance between death and life for one while. Come, dear, I'm going home now. Dobbin is at the door."

Hetty climbed silently into the chaise and nestled down by her father's side.

"Papa," said she, presently, "was I very silly to come here?"

"No, my dear, you were very kind-hearted. But as you see there is some difference between a simple case of croup and malignant quinsy."

"Dakin's boy" recovered with marvelous celerity, and the first place he visited in his convalescence was Doctor Wallis' house, to thank the doctor's black-eyed daughter for coming to see him on that stormy night.

"I wish I was a little chap with the croup," said he, laughing, "to put myself under your professional care."

"What nonsense!" said Hetty, turning very red.

"But, indeed, I shall never forget the pitying look in your eyes," said Hector Dakin, gently. "It seemed somehow to draw me back to life."

And by the time that "Dakin's boy" was quite recovered, he had gotten into a way of spending his time at Doctor Wallis' that seemed decidedly chronic; and no one was very much surprised when he became engaged to the doctor's daughter.

"It's very strange, though," said Sibyl, fretfully, "that the only eligible and decent looking man within ten miles should fall in love with our brown little Hetty."

"I don't think it strange at all," said Doctor Wallis, dryly.

UNCLE REUBEN MEWMAN ON OYSTERS.

Dar is three things dat is took wid tongs, and but bar'ly three. Dey is dese, as follers:
I. Fire.
II. Shugar.
III. Oshters.

Fust, fire. Sich fire as I git dese days are mos'ly dis here black coal dat grows in de groun' like sweet taters. And 'tis mighty sweet, when you kin git nuf an it. But dat ain't of'n, 'case you has to buy it, and you can't buy 'dout money, and money are skace. When I lived wid my ole mistis at Gloster Pint I had lite'nd, and fat pine, and hickry, and chips, and co'n huss in a plenty, and fire didn' cos' me nuthin. But now I pays for a dubble han ful uv rock coal, and glad to git dat. Such tongs as I has is dese han's, dese wrinkly ole han's, and tired nuff dey is. 'Twarn't so at Gloster Pint, whar my fire growd 'bove groun' and I could fetch her down any time day or night I please. Dem days is gone. I got no use for fire-tongs and skeersly no fire to use 'em wid. Dem days is gone.

Seckin, Shugar. Sich Shugar as I gits dese days ar' mos'ly brown, and small uv its age, at dat. I gits ten cent wuth at a time, and not always dat, 'coz shugar ar' a cash article. White man will trus' white man, but no man, white nor black, will trus' nigger fur shugar. Nigger got to go wid sour mouf all de year round, ceppin' he ar' got de cash down on de nail. 'Twarn't so at Gloster Pint. Dar de fiel' han's had brown shugar, harf a teacupfull at a time, but as house boys got do white. Shugar wuz shugar dem days, I tell you. It come in loafs, drest up in a plum-culled suit like a gentleman, and stood up like a man. When we wanted some, we ondrest him—his skin were dazzlin' white—and laid him down on his side, and chopped off a shugar dishfull wid a caseknife and a five pound weight. Dem wuz de days fur tongs, silver tongs. Dem days is gone. Sich shugar as I uses dese days I heists into my cup wid dese han's, and I ain't got no manner o' use for shugar tongs. Yes, dem days is gone.

Thurd, oshters. Sich oshters as I gits dese days is seed oshters, no bigger dan my nail, and no 'count at dat. But down at Gloster Pint and de Seven river oshters wuz big as de parm uv my han', fat as possums, yaller as gole, thick as 'shmons and no eend, jes' no eend uv 'em. Oshters wuz oshters in dem days. My mouf farly dreens water when I thinks 'bout 'em. My ole marster used to say dat oshters wuz salt water taters, but, shuh! taters can't hold a candle to 'em. Nuthin' don't compar' wid 'em. Dey is oshters, and all other eatin' ar' trash longside uv 'em. Up-country niggers don't like de looks uv oshters, but I will say dis 'bout 'em, dat dey is de hardest-face'ted and de saftest-hearted wurrums dat lives. Dey is de mos' peaceable cattle on de plantation, and gives the least trubbil. You don't have to fence 'em out like bull-yearlins, nor cut feed for 'em like horses, neither curry-comb 'em, coz dey got nary mane nor tail. You don't have to call 'em up like hogs, becoz whar he is dar he lays, and a oshter whar he lights dar he stays. Dey is de lonliest things in dis whorl', ceppin' crabs and tarpins, dat has leds and opens like a book, and I tell you dey opens rich. Dar is mo' good readin' in one healthy oshter than in a whole liberry uv books. One goes to de head, but the other purvades de intier sistum.

Dar is three main plain pints 'bout oshters, which is dese, as follers:
I. De eatin' uv 'em.
II. De 'fects uv 'em.
III. De quontity uv 'em.

Fust, de eatin. Dey is good any way you take 'em, if dey ain't spilt. Ef dey is spilt, ughoo! look out. But you kin eat 'em raw and you kin eat 'em cook'd, you kin fry 'em, and stew 'em and bake 'em, and brile 'em, and roast 'em, and you kin eat 'em friz. A friz oshter on a stomach dat is over-het by sperits is de soothenist surop in de worl', and dat's de reason dat white folks at Gloster Pint kin out-drink creashun. But eat 'em any way and dey 'fuses deyselves from eend to eend uv de consechushun like de smell uv coffee and cabbage in a house; dey runs from sho' to sho' like de Gulp Stream, and dey dees you good all over from Alfy to Omegree, all but the megree, for oshters is pow'ful fatt'nin.

Seck'n, de 'fects. Oshters interferes wid no man. You let oshters 'lone, oshters let you 'lone sertin. Oshter never git after you, 'dout you git after oshter. Oshters carms de mind, quiets de narves, settles de stommick, and peacyfies de sperits. 'Tis de licker dat you mixes wid 'em dat gits up de fightin' temper, but you ain't bleegt to mix, 'dough you is powerful apt to, speshly 'bout Gloster Pint. But 'twarn't de Gloster Pint white folks dat fotch on de late war. 'Twas de poke eatin' up country folks 'bout Richmun' dat pokes dar noses whar dey got no bizness, and de whiskey-stillin' tackeys 'bout Gusty county in de valley. Dey done it. Gloster Pint folks loves to eat oshters and go to sleep, but when you wakes 'em too early and dar dander is riz, day is de devil.

Thurd, de quontity. Down in ole Virginny, whar I wuz bo'n and raise, dey tell me dat not less dan 1 600 milyun uv bilyun uv bushels uv oshters is dug up outin de water annual per year. Dar's de place for oshter tongs. In de ole days I had my own cunnor, my own paddle, and my own tongs; and when I wanted oshters I jes' heisted 'em. Dem days is gone. Now I don't heist nothin' but wid dese crooked old fingers, dat's like claws, and can't let go nuthin' when they gits holt uv it. I wish to de Lord dey wuz claws, like a chicken hen's, so dat when I lit on a ashbank wid udder niggers I could outscratch 'em and git mo' cinders dan any uv 'em. But dar's money and a heap uv it in dem milyuns uv bilyuns uv oshters in ole Virginy. Why don't dey tax 'em like dey taxin whiskey dese days? It don't behove a nigger like me to keep out uv debt when my white folks is in debt, and may be I better keep my ole mouf shet, but I jes' tell yer pintedly of dey'll only tack a tax, 'bout de size uv a postige stamp' say, on every enduring oshter, if dey'll do dat, why de debt done up and gone fore you tetch it. Has dey loss dar gumption sinse Rubin Numan let Ole Virginny? 'Pears so to me. Tack a tax on oshters. But my eyes is ole and my sight are not what it wuz in de old days. Dem days is past and gone. You may call 'em, but dey wont come, mo'n a nigger dat's asleep in de edge uv de woods. You may sigh for 'em, but dey will stay whar dey is. Dey is clean gone. But de likes uv de oshters dat luminated em, Rubin Numan shan't see no mo'! No mo', no mo'!

ELEPHANTS—HOW THEY ARE CAPTURED.

Elephants intended for domestication are captured in various ways. It was formerly common to take them in pitfalls, but in this way they were frequently much injured. Another method often practiced is by the aid of tame elephants. Males are chiefly captured in this way, the decoy elephants being females trained for the purpose. With these the hunters very cautiously approach the animal they mean to capture. He generally permits them to come up to him, and is so pleased to make the acquaintance of the females that he takes no notice of their riders and other human attendants. Two of the females take their places, one on each side of him, and while he is interested in them the men whose profession it is, and who spend their lives in the business, contrive to get beneath their bodies and pass ropes around the legs of the intended captive. His two legs are fastened together by six or eight ropes in the form of a figure 8, another rope keeping them tight at the intersections, and a strong cable with a running noose is attached to each hind-leg. About twenty minutes are usually spent in fixing the necessary ropes, profound silence being maintained the process goes on unobserved; or some of the other hunters distract the attention of the elephant from those who are engaged in the work. When at last the animal becomes sensible of his danger and tries to retreat, an opportunity is soon found of tying him, by means of the long cables that trail behind, to some tree strong enough for the purpose. His fury then becomes ungovernable, and he makes violent efforts to get free, usually throwing himself on the ground and twisting himself into the most extraordinary positions. It is not until he has thoroughly exhausted himself, and begins to suffer severely from fatigue, hunger, and thirst, that the steps are taken toward taming him and making a faithful and willing servant of man.

Still more wonderful is the manner in which the capture of an elephant will sometimes be effected by not more than two hunters. Armed with no other weapon than a flexible rope, a couple of intrepid men will start out into the forest in search of their prey without aid or attendants. With this rope they secure one of the elephant's hind-legs by following his footsteps when in motion, or by stealing close up to him when at rest. Sometimes they effect their object by spreading the noose on the ground, partially concealed by the roots and leaves, beneath a tree in which one of the party is secreted who suddenly tightens the noose by means of a cord. When arrested by the rope, which is also fastened to some neighboring trunk, the elephant naturally turns upon the man in front. By succession of maneuvers he avoids the charge, while his companion insnares the beast by passing noose after noose over the feet, all of which are finally made fast to trees, and thus the capture is complete. After this the hunters build a booth for themselves close by their prisoners, kindle their fires for cooking and remain quietly day after day until the elephant is sufficiently tame to be led away. These huge animals are usually captured singly, but whole herds are in some cases taken at once. This is accomplished by means of an inclosure, toward which the elephants are driven by great numbers of men encircling a considerable space, and contracting the circle by slow degrees. Weeks or even months are spent in this operation, and at last the elephants, hemmed in on every side except the mouth of the inclosure, enter it, and the gate is immediately closed. The modes of constructing this inclosure are different in different parts of the East. Tame elephants are sometimes sent into it, and the fresh captives are in succession made fast to trees.

WHAT KILLS.—In the school, as in the world, far more rust out than wear out. Study is most tedious and wearisome to those who study least. Drones always have the toughest time. Grumblers make poor scholars, and their lessons are uniformly "hard" and "too long." The time and thought expended in shirking would be ample to master their tasks. Sloth, gormandizing, and worry kill their thousands, where over study harms one. The curse of Heaven rests on laziness and gluttony. By the very constitution of our being they are fitted to beget that torpor and despondency which chill the blood, deaden the nerves, enfeeble the muscles, and derange the whole vital machinery. Fretting, fidgeting, ennui, and anxiety are among the most common causes of disease. On the other hand, high aspiration and enthusiasm help digestion and respiration, and send an increased supply of vital energy to all parts of the body.

UTILIZING CIGAR ENDS.—In Berlin, Germany, there is a society for collecting the ends of cigars, which are usually thrown away. They are collected and manufactured into snuff, which is sold and the money applied to benevolent purposes. In 1876 about thirty children were clothed by this society. More than two hundred children have been clothed by this means. It is proposed to extend the organization throughout Germany, and it is computed that there are ten millions of smokers half of whom will save their cigar ends for the use of the society. Assuming that the cigar ends of each person during one week are worth only a quarter pfennig (ten pfennig equal one penny English,) we have a total revenue for the year of six hundred and fifty thousand marks, or thirty-two thousand five hundred pounds.

A LITTLE girl had been absent with her parents to a camp-meeting for two weeks. On her return her little playmate, Ella Day, entertained her by showing her her new playthings. At night little Mary, in saying her prayers, said: "Oh Lord, bless Ella Day and make her a good girl, so I can take all her playthings away from her and she wont want them back again."—St. Louis Post.

AT a wedding recently, when the clergyman asked the lady, "Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" she, with a modesty which lent her beauty an additional grace, replied, "If you please."

M'LIN'S CONFESSION.

HOW THE STATE OF FLORIDA WAS STOLEN FOR HAYES.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The Times prints the following as Judge McLin's confession:

As a member of the late state board of canvassers of the state of Florida, I feel impelled by a sense of duty to myself and justice to others to make the following statement: At the time the canvass was made I was not at any time conscious of acting otherwise than right and proper. I entered upon the canvass with the conviction that it was my privilege and duty, in a political sense, to give the benefit of every doubt in favor of the Republican party. I felt that when a question could be decided either way without doing violence to a public sense of justice, it was fairly allowable in politics that I should always lean to my own party, and give my decision in its favor even at the hazard of straining a point. At no time did I feel that I occupied the position of a judge charged with the duty of a strict and nice weighing and balancing of all the evidence presented. Looking back now to that time, I feel that there was a combination of influences that must have operated most powerfully in blinding my judgment and swaying my action. I had been for many years and was at the time of the canvass, a very active partisan. I sincerely thought that our state and the nation would suffer irreparable injury if the Democratic party were to obtain the presidency and the policy of hatred to the negro, and those who had been the friends of the negro, should obtain control at Washington. It was the common and unanimous talk also that the very existence of the men who in the South had upheld the Republican party, depended upon the election of Mr. Hayes. Mr. Hayes would sustain them throughout the South, while Mr. Tilden would crush them. I was shown numerous telegrams addressed to Governor Stearns and others from the trusted leaders of the Republican party in the North, insisting that the salvation of the country depended upon the vote of Florida being cast for Hayes. Those telegrams came from those to whom I have been accustomed to defer. The chairman of the national committee and the man who was the nearest personal friend of Mr. Hayes had conducted the canvass. These telegrams also gave assurance of the forthcoming of money and troops, if necessary, in securing the victory for Mr. Hayes. Following these telegrams trusted northern Republicans, party leaders and personal friends of Mr. Hayes arrived in Florida as rapidly as the railroads could bring them. I was surrounded by these men, who were ardent Republicans, and especially by friends of Governor Hayes. One gentleman, particularly, Governor Noyes, of Ohio, was understood to represent him, and spoke with the authority of a warm personal friend, commissioned with power to act in his behalf. These men referred to the general destruction of the country should Mr. Tilden be elected, the intense anxiety of the Republican party of the North, and their full sympathy with us. I cannot say how far my action may have been influenced by the intense excitement that prevailed around me, or how far my partizan zeal may have led me into error. Neither can I say how far my course was influenced by the promise made by Mr. Noyes that if Mr. Hayes became President I should be rewarded. Certainly these influences must have had a strong control over my judgment and action. Reviewing my action at this distance of time with all calmness, with my ardor cooled and my partisan zeal chilled by the President who has basely betrayed and mercilessly destroyed the Republican party of the South and crushed the very men who did so much for his election, I am persuaded that the Florida canvass was not conducted with that cool, calm judgment and honest, unbiased decision that should have characterized a proceeding involving such vast and important interests. Instead of this, I now see that the whole proceedings went through upon the highest wave of political excitement; that partisan feeling, stimulated to the utmost by the most powerful agencies, usurped the place of reason and sound judgment, and political expediency ruled the hour. A large number of precincts were either contested by the Democratic or Republican party.

NEARLY 400 DEMOCRATIC VOTES REJECTED.

Voluminous testimony was filed and the lawyers of both sides argued each for their side of the issue that it was the duty of the board to throw out and not include in the count or retain and count precincts on the ground of illegality in the conduct of the election, or fraud that was charged to exist. The attorney general of the state and a member of the board had decided that the board had quasi judicial power, and had the right to exclude precincts from the count if the returns were shown to be so irregular, false or fraudulent as to prevent the board from ascertaining from them the true vote. With this view of its duties the board entered upon the work of canvass with the conviction that they were invested with large discretionary powers, which were of a mixed character, political and judicial, the political largely predominating. Partisan zeal and strong political ties had a powerful influence in the exercise of these powers, and the Republicans having a majority of the board the canvass was largely in their favor as the result proved. If the board had acted in accordance with the decision of the Supreme court of the state defining the powers and duties of the board in reference to throwing out precincts since rendered, there is no question of the fact that Mr. Tilden would have been entitled to the vote of Florida. Excluding the return from Baker county, which was counted, and which I have since learned from the parties who made it, was a falsely manufactured return, and including the true return, which corresponded with the precinct returns of that county, would certainly have given the state to Mr. Tilden.—Archer precinct, No. 2, Alachua county, was included in the count. The fraud committed in this precinct was not shown to the board by the Democratic lawyers, although a contest was made and much attention given to the precinct, but I have recently learned from Republican leaders of the county that after the returns had been brought to Gainesville, the county seat, 219 votes were added to the returns by the inspectors and clerk of said precinct. In Leon county 74 small Republican ballots were stuffed into the ballot-box at precinct No. 9, yet it was made to appear to the satisfaction of the Democratic members of the board that these were false ballots. Subsequent confessions show that they were stuffed into the box. I had seen Joseph Bowes, one of the inspectors, have tickets similar to them a few days before the election, and cautioned him against their use unless they were generally adopted, and I afterward learned he had given them up. In Jefferson county, in a certain precinct at which Mr. J. Bell was inspector, 100 votes were surreptitiously added to the ballots and counted. No charge was made as to this fact before the board. The confession of J. Bell since made to me discloses the fact that had the 219 votes fraudulently added to the Archer returns, and the 74 votes stuffed in the box in Leon county, and the 100 votes surreptitiously added in Jefferson county, aggregating 393 votes, been rejected, and the Democratic rejected precincts, which were excluded for irregularity and illegality, contrary to the decision of the Supreme court, been retained and counted, Mr. Tilden would have carried the state.

The conclusion, therefore, is irresistible that Mr. Tilden was entitled to the electoral vote of Florida and not Mr. Hayes. In making this statement my motives will doubtless be questioned by many, but the facts will stand alone as the truth without any mere motives to sustain them. I am free to admit that, viewing things as I now do and remembering that Mr. Hayes was continually inspiring his personal friends and trusted agents by every means in his power to secure to him the electoral votes of Florida and Louisiana, and believing it to have been a conscious wrong on his part, done with the knowledge that he had not been elected, as his subsequent repudiation of Governor Packard, whose title was bound up in his own, and his willful and cowardly desertion of the very men who contributed so largely to his election, has shown my contempt for the pitiable weakness of the man beyond my power of expression. Mr. Hayes has denied the validity of his own title in denying Governor Packard's. He has ignored his Florida friends, showing he believed them unworthy and tainted with a fraud, yet he holds on to the presidency which in his own opinion was secured by this very fraud. He has cowardly abandoned and betrayed his southern Republican friends through fear of being ousted from an office that he believed he never was elected to by the people. Whatever may be the opinion of men in regard to my motives I give them facts, and leave my motives to a higher tribunal.

SAMUEL B. MCLIN.

The above was signed and sworn to before the clerk of Thomas county, Ga.

A LADY'S STRANGE PETS.—Most ladies choose a dog, a cat, a canary or pony for a pet, and often "set their lives upon them," but rarely does one hear of a lady attaching herself to such strange pets as the writer saw at Mrs. Lincoln's, No. 51 Howard street, a day or two ago. Living in the family are a couple of lions, twenty one months old, brought up by the hand of Mrs. Lincoln. They are African lions, a species not easily reared in this country, but Mrs. Lincoln has succeeded, by the exercise of great care, in rearing them to their present age and size. The male weighs about 250 pounds and the female perhaps fifty pounds less. They have been at the house on Howard street since last September, and until within a month have had the "run of the place," going about the rooms with considerable freedom. As a measure of caution the police thought the creatures should be restrained, and their quarters are now more limited than formerly, although they have a safe out-door run and a room adjoining the kitchen, with only a strong wire door separating the apartments. Mrs. Lincoln is as free with her pets as ladies are with their poodles. She plays with them; feeds them from her hands, and has taught them various tricks. They will kiss her at her bidding, and jump through a hoop, etc. Before the police restrictions were placed upon them, the animals were accustomed to walk into the kitchen or parlor among the guests, and go back to their quarters without offering harm to any one. A year ago the lioness used to occupy the same couch with the lady at night, but now she has grown too large to be taken upon a common bedstead. The animals are quite a curiosity, and in their gentleness show plainly how potent is the law of kindness even with the brute creation.—Boston Herald.

HOW TO PLEASE YOUR BOY.—If you want to keep your boy home, make it pleasanter for him than the street.—Ex.

Certainly. Chalk a hopscotch in the hall, put a hogshead of molasses on tap in the kitchen, have a dog fight in the back yard, make a "bully slide" on the cellar door, have a band organ and monkey in the reception room, and a German band on the stairs. Hire a "Geevus" to be chaffed. Let the boy chalk callers' backs on the 1st of April, throw his base-ball through the windows, ring the bells, and run away and "plug" the cook with fish balls Sunday morning; but even then you will have to engage a circus or "great moral show" to drive through the premises two or three times in the season to "make it pleasanter than the street."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

THE Household of the Queen of England is an expensive one, though it is hardly necessary to say that the fact of its being so is not the gracious sovereign's fault. The salaries of leading officials foot up $260,070. The lord steward gets $10,000 a year, and the lord chamberlain as much more; the lords and ladies of the bath, the bed chamber, the stables and what-nots, together with poet laureates, play examiners and other luxuries bring the expenses up to $1,518,500, exclusive of the Queen's privy purse. Her Majesty's own allowance is $1,910,000, and her children receive annuities amounting to $785,000.

ONE of the New York story papers has commenced an exciting serial, the hero of which is called "the hunky boy with the calico eye." And now we may expect to see a rival sheet come out with a hero called "the bully youth with the nank-en ear," or "the hunky child with a red flannel nose," or "the chunky boy with a linsey-woolsey tooth." The story writers for youth are equal to any emergency, and the writer who would give his hero a "calico eye," wouldn't hesitate to give his heroine an "unbleached muslin heart."

EARNESTNESS.—A schoolboy was asked by his teacher to give an example of earnestness. He looked bothered for a moment, but his face brightened liked the dew-drops glistening on the leaves of the rose in early morning as he delivered himself of the following happy thought: "When you see a boy engaged on a mince pie till his nose touches the middle plum and his ears droop on the out crusts, you may know he has got it."

AT the trial of a criminal case in the Maine supreme court recently the prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty," when one of the jurymen put on his hat and started for the door. The judge called him back and informed him that he could not leave until the case was tried. "Tried," queried the juror. "Why he acknowledged that he is not guilty."

A LADY with a fatal squint came once to a fashionable artist for a portrait. He looked at her and she looked at him, and both were embarrassed. He spoke first. "Would your ladyship permit me," he said, "to take the portrait in profile? There is a certain shyness about one of your ladyship's eyes which is as difficult in art as it is fascinating in nature."

A CORRESPONDENT asks, "What is the best method of feeding cattle in the winter?" We don't exactly know. One man might prefer to take the oxen in his lap and feed him with a spoon. Others would bring him into the dining room and let him sit at the table with the old folks. Tastes differ in matters of this kind.

AS a party of gentlemen and ladies were climbing to the top of a monument one day, lately, a gentleman remarked: "This is rather a spiral flight of steps." "Yes, perspiral!" and she wiped her brow as she spoke.

THE best way to discourage a boil is to seek a right slippery place on the pavement, and then when the boil ain't looking come down on it—flop.

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1878.

HON. JOHN MORRISSEY has been stricken with paralysis, and can hardly recover.

HON. WM. A. WALLACE has been chosen senatorial delegate for Clearfield county to the Democratic State Convention.

THE bill to repeal the Bankrupt Law has passed both houses of Congress by large majorities. Proceedings in pending cases will go on to conclusion, as before the repeal.

THE Doylestown Democrat — the staunch old organ of the Democracy of Bucks county—is out in a new dress. We congratulate Gen. Davis on his good taste in the premises.

SENATOR THURMAN'S Pacific Railroad Funding bill, after its triumphant passage in the Senate, was called up in the House on Wednesday, and passed without amendment by a vote of 243 to 2. Benj. F. Butler, of Mass., and Lynde, of Wisconsin, were the only members opposing it.

ADAMS county sends Hon. William McSherry and F. H. Ebert as delegates to the Democratic State Convention, instructed to support Hon. A. H. Dill for governor and Capt. Jacob Ziegler for lieutenant governor.—COMPILER.

We return our sincere thanks to the Democrats of Adams county for their kindness in instructing their delegates for us. Gettysburg is the place of our nativity, and this fact makes the kindness all the more to be appreciated. It will be remembered.—Ziegler's Herald.

THE Washington Post and Union announces that Representative Money, of Mississippi, has prepared one of the most important speeches of the session, which will bring out the fact that the bills introduced in the Forty-fifth Congress by northern representatives to appropriate money and pay claims of various kinds aggregate the enormous sum of $1,600,000,000 or about eight times as much as the New York Tribune's estimate of southern claims.

IN accordance with the Pennsylvania State law stopping State pensions to the soldiers and sailors of the war of 1812 as soon as provision be made by the Congress of the United States, the said provision having been made by Congress March 9, 1878, the State treasurer has issued an order to county treasurers to pay all soldiers, sailors and widows entitled to annuity each $14 37 from January 1 to March 18, 1878, and from that time the names of all pensioners under the act of March, 1868, will be dropped from the rolls of the State.

THE country is beginning to get at the true inwardness of the last Presidential election, and when the whole of the facts connected with it are reached—if such shall ever be the case—there will be unfolded a tale of political debauchery that will cause honest Republicans to blush for their party.

It is now asserted, among other items, that Gould, and Huntington, of the Pacific railroads, paid three hundred thousand dollars, to the funds that were used to elect Hayes, and that their pay was to come back to them in the shape of railroad legislation!

WHO says that the present congress is not accomplishing anything? It has passed Thurman's Pacific railroad funding bill, the first attempt since the organization of the gigantic trans-continental railway monopoly to compel it to settle with the government. It has repealed the bankrupt law, an invention of the Republican party, which has too long disgraced the federal statute book. It has passed the silver bill, which (as the Patriot remarks,) whatever may be said of the principle on which it is based, is at least a step toward the settlement of the vexed question of finance. Here are three of the most important measures that ever marked the history of any legislative body. No previous congress has dared to face the questions involved in these bills, and it must be admitted that the present congress has shown both courage and diligence in meeting them.

IT is a matter of not the slightest moment what motive actuated McLin and Dennis, the men most conspicuous in the perpetration of the Florida Presidential Electoral frauds, in making confessions. All justice and the people have to do in the matter is to thoroughly sift these statements, separate the true from the false and act in accordance with the result. McLin, as he broadly avers in his confession, has squealed because he has not been compensated for his dishonesty as was promised by Governor Noyes, now Minister to France, Zach Chandler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and other distinguished Northern Republican leaders and special friends of Hayes. Admitting, then, the fact that his confession is due to disappointed expectations, why should its importance be belittled, if, as is undoubtedly the case, it embodies stubborn and incontrovertible facts? That a great wrong was perpetrated in Florida in the making up of the returns of the Presidential election; that the vote of the State was fairly cast for Samuel J. Tilden, and not for Rutherford B. Hayes, and that it was dishonestly counted for Hayes, are things which no one—not even the warmest supporters of the President—pretends to deny.—Phila. Chronicle.

McLin's confession is printed on the first page of this issue. If for no other purpose than to develop the Truth, the fraud should be probed to the bottom, and all in any way connected with it exposed and branded. The Republican party, under the direction of whose leaders it was perpetrated, can never expect to escape the mountain of odium incurred by the infamous proceeding.

THE Florida matter should be sifted to the bottom, not with a view of impeaching Hayes, but for the purpose of making it clear as day to the most obtuse understanding that the Republican party deliberately stole the presidency. —Patriot.

NOTHING can be truer than that, unless the present administration and the party responsible for its induction into office shall disprove these charges, they will be buried in the same grave. This is one of the cases in which by gones will not be by gones; it is not nice they should. The whole world knows that a great crime was committed. Somebody above precinct judges of election and above Returning Boards was responsible for it. The nation has a right to know where this responsibility lies. The Republican party reaped the benefit of the victory fraudulently secured; the President is in possession of the stolen goods, which have been traced to his door. The burden of proof is on their side. If they are innocent why do they block the way of investigation by indignant protests and abuse of the witnesses; and in any case why do they insult intelligence by pushing the Florida frauds aside as a little matter? The tools used to stuff ballot-boxes and forge returns were dirty ones, but no other kind would have consented to the dirty service. Abuse of them by those who handle them will not answer the purpose. We never find honest men turning State's evidence, for they have nothing to confess. These confessions, such as they are, must be the basis of investigation, and those who stand in the way of investigation will be crushed to powder.—Times.

THEY say Hayes thinks too much of the salary to give up the Presidency.

HARRISBURG LETTER.

HARRISBURG, April 27, 1878.

To the Editor of the Compiler:—The House met on Monday evening. Five bills were read the first time and five passed second reading. An effort was made to have a special session after the close of the regular session, to consider the anti discrimination bill, but did not succeed.

On Tuesday the bill providing for the appointment of women prison inspectors was reconsidered and passed, and sent to the Senate. The J. Murray Moorhead bill was then taken up and defeated for want of a constitutional majority. This bill will no doubt be reconsidered, as that seems to be the course with everything this winter. An act to establish boards of arbitration to settle all questions of wages and other matters of variance between employers and employes was passed finally. An act providing for the current expenses of the Board of Charities was passed finally.

The Senate met on Tuesday evening and considered bills on first and second reading. In the Senate on Wednesday a resolution was offered fixing the final adjournment on the tenth of May, but was postponed in the House. The same day two resolutions were reported from committees providing for adjournment on the 24th of May, but the House refused to act upon them. The Senate passed a number of local bills finally. The act prescribing the mode of fixing the salaries of County Superintendents of Common Schools passed third reading. The House considered bills on second reading, the most of the day being taken up in the consideration of the bill fixing the salaries of the Judges of the several judicial districts of the commonwealth. The act repealing the act providing for the closing of the soldiers Orphans' Schools in May, 1879, passed second reading. A number of appropriation bills also passed second reading—among them the Border Damage bill. This will likely be reached next week on final passage.

The Senate spent Thursday morning discussing the resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution reducing the number of members of the House to 150, which fell for want of a constitutional majority. In the afternoon an act authorizing and empowering the courts of common pleas of the several counties in this commonwealth to change, alter and direct the mode of preparing and keeping indices in the several offices of record, and for preparing, making and substituting new indices for old indices or parts thereof, passed finally.

In the House the bill for the relief of Murray Moorhead was reconsidered, amended and laid over. The act fixing the salaries of the Judges of the several judicial districts passed second reading. The Senate amendments to the bill fixing the salaries of County Superintendents were concurred in and the bill goes to the governor. This does not change the salary now paid to your County Superintendent. The afternoon was spent in the consideration of local bills, and quite a number passed second reading.

The Senate on Friday considered bills on second reading. In the House one was offered and passed providing that the act to prevent discrimination in freight be made the special order for next Wednesday afternoon. They then proceeded to consider the day of final adjournment, and after considerable discussion, the vote was taken and May 24th determined upon. Motions were made fixing sessions on Monday and Friday afternoons, which was referred to the committee on rules—which committee will report on Tuesday the rules to govern through the month of May.

Col. Noyes, State Treasurer elect, has made his principal appointments, as follows; Chief Clerk, J. Blake Walters, of Clearfield; Clerk, W. J. Bayard, of Greene co., and Robert Flemming, of Lock Haven. He retains Mr. Egass, the present book-keeper, for the present.

As the time for the State Convention approaches, calculations are being made as to the standing of the various candidates. It looks now as though the first ballot would stand: Dill 150, Hopkins 90, McCandless 65, Jenks 50, with fully 100 scattered between the dark horses in the race. In the Republican Convention, on the first ballot, Hoyt, will have 150, Grow 70, Wickersham 80, with 75 to 100 scattering. ADAMS.

POLITICAL.—Dauphin county instructs for Dill unanimously.

GROW is said to be gaining strength among the Republicans in the western part of the State—but Hoyt has Cameron.

EARLY.—The Democrats of Bratton township, Chester county, have organized a McClellan and Hampton club for 1880.

THE Democrats have leaders of ability, they have principles and a policy, and they have the courage and the ability to assert both, despite the invectives and objurgations of their old-time enemies. Every day adds to their administration of public affairs wherever they have the power as wise and truthful.—Chronicle.

A GREENBACK paper in Iowa complains that its party does not flourish because "It is under the control of a set of mutton heads."

IF Hayes were the high-toned man he ought to be, he would now step down and out, and allow the people to have their choice for President—Samuel J. Tilden.

IF McLin feels such remorse over a few hundred Florida votes, what ought Wells, Anderson, Casanave and Kenner to feel about eight thousand?

AND now hasn't J. Madison Wells got something in the way of a quickened conscience concealed about his person? —Balt. Gaz.

REPUBLICAN rascality, as painted by itself, on first page. See McLin's Confession.

THE Republicans are again making very fair promises. They always do before elections. They lied in 1876, and mean to lie in 1878. The election of the Democratic ticket will alone rebuke them.

THERE appears to be no prospect for peace. It is not so much that war is inevitable as that peace is as far off as ever.

The St. Petersburg Agence Russe confirms the report that England and Russia have agreed that a direct exchange of views should precede the Congress. Austria, Germany and Italy also favor the course, and have invited England to state her views.

LONDON, April 26.—A special dispatch from Berlin to the Daily News throws some light on the English objections to the German form of invitation to the Congress. The dispatch says: "The proposed form the British government say expresses an assumption that the treaties of 1856 and 1871 are already modified by the results of war. England insists, on the contrary, that the necessity of superseding or amending those treaties is not to be assumed in advance in a way which might prejudice the negotiations."

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 26.—The extreme Mussulman party has asked the Shereef of Mecca and the Mufti of Tunis and Morocco whether Turkey should join England in the event of an Anglo-Russian war. The Muftis replied in the affirmative, and the Shereef promised to submit the question to the Council in the event of the outbreak of hostilities.

The Times' Rustchuk correspondent telegraphs as follows: "Out of 6,000 Russians here forty or fifty die daily of ordinary and spotted typhus. At Adrianople, Sistova and Turnova it is reported that hundreds die daily."

The English reserves are being put on a war footing.

THE ANTECEDENTS OF DISEASE.—Among the antecedents of disease are inertness in the circulation of the blood, an unnaturally attenuated condition of the physique, indicating that the life current is deficient in nutritive properties, a wan, haggard look, inability to digest the food, loss of appetite, sleep and strength, and a sensation of unnatural languor. All these may be regarded as among the indicia of approaching disease, which will eventually attack the system and overwhelm it, if it is not built up and fortified in advance. Invigorate, then, without loss of time, making choice of the greatest vitalizing agent extant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an elixir which has given health and vigor to myriads of the sick and debilitated, which is avouched by physicians and analysts to be pure as well as effective, which is immensely popular in this country, and extensively used abroad, and which has been for years past one of the leading medicinal staples of America. The plate will be forwarded to him, at his home, Springfield, Vt.

The warehouse of Baughman & Hoover, at East Berlin, was recently slightly damaged by lightning, the current having first struck the track and ran along it to a corner of the building.

H. B. WOODS, Esq., is about removing to Reading, where he has leased an office and will continue the practice of law. He has been in our midst a number of years, acquiring a good business, and enjoying the esteem and confidence of the bar and public; and now that he goes to a wider field he will doubtless attain a larger measure of success, which his many friends in this, his native county, most heartily wish him.

He intends to leave his family here during the summer, and will make frequent visits to complete previous legal engagements. Jacob A. Kitzmiller, Esq. succeeds Mr. Woods in the office on the second floor of the Spangler building.

MURDER.—Hezekiah Shaller was tried last week at Chambersburg for the murder of his wife, and the jury, after being out about three and a half hours, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. His counsel made a motion for a new trial. Shaller is said to have been a good soldier, and participated in the battles of Drainsville, Bull Run No. 2, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. He manifested no fear or emotion during the trial. There were fourteen wounds on the murdered woman's head, and arsenic was found in her stomach.

BARN BURNED.—On Saturday morning last, between 2 and 3 o'clock, the barn of Emanuel Sauble, near Union Bridge, was struck by lightning, and set on fire. The barn was entirely consumed, together with eight horses, thirteen cows, sixty barrels of corn, a lot of rye, wagon shed and corn crib. Loss about $4,000, insured in the Montgomery Company for $1,400.—Westminster Advocate.

One horse and one cow were rescued from the burning building. Mr. Sauble is engaged in the milk business, and will rebuild immediately.

PERSONAL.—We had on Tuesday the pleasure of a call from Mr. V. M. Lahman, of Wiota, Iowa, son of John Lahman, deceased, a former prominent citizen of this county. In addition to running the mercantile business, he is now Cashier of the Wiota Bank. For twenty-three years a resident of Cass county, he has had much to do with its progress and present prosperous condition, and it is only natural that he should be respected as one of its best and most useful citizens. He of course adheres to the Democratic faith, in which he was reared, and in which he has, if possible, more enduring confidence than ever.

A REMARKABLE OLD GENTLEMAN.—Mr. John Bender, a resident of Bendersville, Adams county, was ninety years old on the 9th of March last. During this long period—as we are informed by members of his family—he has seldom felt unwell, and paid but seventy-five cents for medicine for his own use thus far in life. Although advanced to the age indicated, Mr. Bender is yet active in mind and body, and can be seen taking a stroll, almost every day, through the neighborhood in which he resides.

Mr. Bender has a number of articles in his possession of ancient manufacture. He has a Bible which was printed in 1738. Also, a meat vessel made in 1814, which was in good condition until November last, when new hoops were put on it. A vinegar barrel, now in use, has been in his possession since 1816, and as near as Mr. Bender can ascertain the barrel was made one hundred and twenty-five years ago. He has a farm about a mile from Bendersville, on which stands a house built by William Griffy during the year 1785, and from appearances has stood well the storms of that long period since its erection. We trust Mr. Bender may live to see many more days of usefulness and pleasure.—Hanover Citizen.

Mr. Bender is one of our oldest subscribers; has read the COMPILER for more than half a century, and paid for it as regularly as year followed year. May he still be long spared, and continue in good health, as he surely will in the warm regard of all who know him.

CONTRACT.—The contract for building the Insane Hospital at the Alms-house was, on Tuesday, awarded to Mr. Elias Roth, of New Oxford, (the lowest bidder,) at $5,200.—There were three other bids, the highest being over $8,000. The building is to be completed by the first of next November.

By the erection of this hospital, increased comfort for those kept here will be secured, and the large bills of the State Hospital annually saved by the county. Indeed a source of revenue may grow out of the transfer of several permanently insane persons now at Harrisburg to this institution, their friends paying for their keeping here as they are now doing at that place.

THE HIGH WATER.—About 9 o'clock on Saturday night, as Mr. John Miller, of Beecherville, was crossing the Conowago at the Paper Mill fording, (a short distance below his residence,) with a load of wool gathered during the day, in the strong current and darkness the wagon struck the ice-breaker of the foot bridge. He jumped out, but was carried down some distance before making the shore, and securing help, the horse and wagon were found to have drifted several hundred yards. The former was rescued, and on Sunday the wagon was also gotten out of the stream, only a few of the bundles of wool missing.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.—Hampton Union Sabbath School has been re-organized, and the following officers elected: Superintendent, Emanuel Chronister; Assistant Superintendent, Rev. D. Sell; Secretary, John D. Baker; Librarians, Henry Hantz and James Deardorff; Treasurer, Singleton Eicholtz.

Tom's Creek Sabbath School (Liberty township) has also been re-organized, with the following officers elected: Superintendent, A. C. Musselman; Assistants, G. W. Wortz and Daniel Little; Secretary, Lewis S. Wortz; Treasurer, Wm. P. Nonemaker. The school is in a flourishing condition, and has 50 scholars.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.—Next Tuesday, May 7th, at 1 o'clock, P. M., the school directors of the county will meet in the Court House to elect a County Superintendent for the next three years. It is very important that directors should attend the convention and select the best available person for this responsible position. We would urge directors to read that part of the law relating to the qualifications of a Superintendent.

IN an article clipped from the Bulletin in our last week's issue, it was stated that Isaac Myers, of Adams county, had been arrested and bound over to court for receiving stolen goods from a boy named McGruder, which is incorrect. In a letter received from Isaac Myers, of Round Hill, he states that he is the only man in Adams county of that name, and that he never received any goods from the above party.—Comet.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A horrible accident occurred on the farm of Mr. Solomon Dewalt, on the Baltimore pike, near Carlisle, on Tuesday week. Men were engaged in building a lime stack, and had almost finished the job. Two large farm wagons were used in hauling stone. On one of them was seated Harry, youngest son of Mr. Dewalt, aged about 15 years, who slipped and fell to the ground. One of the hind wheels of the heavily loaded wagon passed over his head, crushing his skull and causing instant death.

A DEBATABLE QUESTION.

While much has been written concerning the use of "put up" medicines, the question is still an open one, and demands of the people a careful consideration. The salient points may be briefly stated, and answered as follows: 1st—Are the sick capable of determining their real condition, the nature of their malady, and selecting the proper remedy or means of cure? 2d—Can a physician, no matter how skillful, prepare a universal remedy, adapted to the peculiar ailments of a large class of people, residing in different latitudes, and subject to various climatic influences? In answer to the first proposition, we would say, diseases are named and known by certain "signs" or symptoms, and, as the mother does not need a physician to tell her that her child has the whooping-cough, or indicate a remedy, so people when afflicted with many of the symptoms concomitant to "impure blood," "torpid liver," and "bad digestion," require no other knowledge of their condition, or the remedy indicated, than they already possess. Second proposition—Many physicians argue that diseases are sectionally peculiar, and that their treatment must therefore vary, and yet quinine, morphine, podophyllin, and hundreds of other remedies are prescribed in all countries to overcome certain conditions. Is it not, therefore, self-evident that a physician whose large experience has made him familiar with the many phases incident to all impurities of the blood, general and nervous debility, liver complaint, dyspepsia, consumption, and catarrh, can prepare a series of remedies exactly adapted to meet the conditions manifest, wherever, and by whatever means, it may have have been engendered? The family medicines prepared by R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., fulfill the above requirements. Many physicians prescribe them in their practice. His Golden Medical Discovery has no equal as a blood purifier and general tonic, while his Favorite Prescription cures those weaknesses peculiar to women, after physicians have failed. His Pleasant Purgative Pellets, which are sugar coated and little larger than mustard seeds, are a safe and certain cure for "torpid" liver and constipation. It contains instruction concerning anatomy, physiology, hygiene, and the treatment of diseases. Over one hundred thousand copies already sold. Price (post-paid,) $1.50. Address the author, R. V. RECORD YOUR DEEDS.—The attention of persons holding unrecorded Deeds is directed o the provisions of the Act of Assembly which require that—

"All deeds and conveyances for real estate in this commonwealth, shall be recorded in the office for Recording Deeds in the county where the lands lie, within six months after the execution of such deeds and conveyances; and every such deed and conveyance not recorded as aforesaid, shall be adjudged FRAUDULENT AND VOID against any subsequent purchaser for a valuable consideration, unless such deeds be recorded before the recording of the deed or conveyance under which such subsequent purchaser or mortgagee shall claim."

This is a very important notice, and those holding unrecorded deeds will see the importance of having them recorded without urther delay. tf

IT is about time the story about Jefferson Davis in full uniform, reviewing Mexican troops, got to the end of its tether. The Chicago Times says: "Minister Foster having recognized the Diaz government, Diaz proceeded to recognize Jeff Davis, who has been visiting the Mexican capital. A grand military parade was held in Jeff's honor, about five thousand men being in line. Jeff put himself in full uniform and reviewed the troops." The Davis who reviewed the Mexican troops was Gen. Jefferson C. Davis, United States army, and not the Jefferson Davis who was president of the southern confederacy.

A REPORTER who called upon Mrs. Tilton with a copy of the confession, to get her endorsement, says of her personal appearance: Instead of the slight, delicate woman, in unrelieved black, whose haggard, pale face was frequently seen in Judge Neilson's court room during the progress of her husband's suit, there came to the door a plump, pretty little woman, with rosy cheeks and bright eyes, a quick, strong step and erect carriage. The mourning gown had given place to a stylish, close-fitting dress of dark goods, plentifully ornamented with blue ribbons. There seemed, however, to be a much greater proportion of gray in her naturally black hair than there was two years ago.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia!

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and affects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E. F. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting, it has been prescribed daily for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalleled success. It is not expected or intended to cure all diseases to which the human family is subject, but is warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia or loss of appetite, wind and rising of the food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkel's, which is put only in one dollar bottles. Depot, 259 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. It never fails. For sale by all Druggists and dealers everywhere.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia!

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and affects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E. F. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting, it has been prescribed daily for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalleled success. It is not expected or intended to cure all diseases to which the human family is subject, but is warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia or loss of appetite, wind and rising of the food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkel's, which is put only in one dollar bottles. Depot, 259 North Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. It never fails. OUR PARIS LETTER.

Our Countrymen in Paris; How they Look and Act.—Some of the famous Restaurants and Cafes.—Bennett and Bignon's.—Arrival of Prominent Americans.—Progress at the Exposition Grounds.—Reciprocal Courtesy of France and Germany.—Completion of the United States Annex, &c., &c.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

HOTEL DU LOUVRE, PARIS, April 11, 1878.

Somebody has said that Americans make the best Frenchmen of all the foreigners who flock here from all parts of the globe; and from what I have seen of our beloved countrymen abroad, I am inclined to believe that such is really the fact. The English are always English, and promenade in London styles on the Rue de Rivoli, affect nothing but dog-carts and drags in the Boulevards and in the Bois de Boulogne, and, when they condescend to learn French, never speak it without the peculiar nasal cockney twang of Piccadilly. The Russians, of whom there are always a large colony here, are intensely Russe in everything, and spend more money on diamonds, champagne, and questionable women, than all the other foreigners put together. The Germans, of whom we have also a great many here, are, as a rule, of an economical turn of mind; patronize cheap restaurants and third-class hotels, and assimilate with nothing as readily as beer. They are the least popular of all the foreigners here, for Paris has not yet forgotten 1871. But an American has not been a week in Paris before he waxes his moustache, buys a plug hat of the latest Parisian style at Chantil's, sports lavender kids and a whalebone cane with an ivory leg for a handle, wears narrow trowsers, a tightly-fitting cheviot sack-coat, and patent-leather boots, and says "au plaisir!" and "pardon, monsieur," every five minutes!

During the last fortnight, every train from Calais and Havre has brought a swarm of Americans to Paris, most of whom intend to remain here during the coming exhibition. Go to any of the first-class hotels, the Splendide, the Louvre, or the Grand Hotel, for instance, and you will find crowds of them. Bignon's, on the Boulevard des Italiens, and the Cafe Riche, on the Boulevard des Capucines, seem to possess peculiar attractions for young and flush America, who may be seen here at luncheon and dinner every day. Bignon's is the head-quarters of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald, who takes his meals there, and always sits at the same little round table, in company with three or four friends. The Trois Freres, in the Palais Royal, and Vefour's, vie with Bignon's and the Cafe Riche in point of excellence, elegance and comfort, but are chiefly patronized by Englishmen and native Parisians, Americans preferring Bignon's. It was G. H. Butler, that delightful Bohemian, I believe, who remarked that "a breakfast at Bignon's is a poem, and a dinner at the Cafe Riche a liberal education"; and those of my countrymen who are surfeited with our dyspeptic way of preparing viands intended for human digestion would appreciate the force of this remark.

It is yet too early to derive much pleasure from a visit to the exposition grounds, where everything is still in confusion; but from day to day, order is evolved from chaos, and by the first of May, everything, with the exception of the United States Division, will be in apple pie order, and our Commissioners are doing all they can to make, at least, a respectable show at the opening. Among recent distinguished American arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dana, (Mr. Dana is a grandson of the poet Dana, and his wife a daughter of the poet Longfellow;) and Mr. Stroughton, our minister at St. Petersburg, who is here on a brief preliminary visit, making arrangements for a longer stay during the exhibition. Mr. J. Russell, the N. Y. Herald correspondent, who accompanied ex-President Grant on his trip on the United States Steamer Vandalia, is also here; and Mr. Bayard Taylor, our new minister to Berlin, and Samuel Clemens, better known as "Mark Twain," are expected to arrive in the course of a few days.

The Wheelock engine, built in Worcester, Mass., which is to propel the machinery in the American section, is now being erected, and will be ready for its trial test in a few days. Though inferior in size to many of the engines in the French, English, and German departments, it compares favorably with them in workmanship and finish, and I was told by the engineer in charge that it works almost noiseless. Strange to say, Krupp, the famous gun manufacturer of Essen, in Rhenish Prussia, has, so far, none of his cannon placed in position; perhaps this is a point of delicacy, however, because Paris saw and felt rather too much of the Krupp cannon in 1871. The monster gun which he had on exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876 has been purchased by the Russian Government, and now forms an important and formidable part of the armament of the fort Cronstadt, in the Baltic sea.

The recent order issued by the art committee of the French Commission, that no paintings commemorating scenes from the late Franco German war would be allowed at the exhibition, has given rise to considerable dissatisfaction among some of the leading French artists, who had painted battle scenes with the express purpose of exhibiting them to the world at the Champ de Mars this summer. But this order was made imperatively necessary by the action of the Emperor of Germany in prohibiting German artists from contributing pictures of the Siege of Paris, battle of Sedan, and similar scenes by no means soothing or complimentary to the French. So that the Art Gallery at the great International Exposition of 1878 will be neutral ground, where both nations may meet without stumbling over anything that would rip up wounds that have scarcely healed yet and give vent to many a "sacre!" and "donnerwetter!" from both Gauls and Teutons.

Mr. Vittit, the French Architect who superintends the erection of the American annex, has very nearly completed this part of his work; the front or facade having been placed in position. The canvas screens, which it has been found necessary to stretch across the roof, are also in place, and will bear favorable comparison with anything of the kind in the Exhibition. Each screen bears the name and device of one of the States of the Union, and in the centre is a grand design representing the arms of the United States. The colors are very bright, and the ornamental designs very chaste and effective. The designs on the screens are so arranged as to form lines running the whole length of the building, so as to draw out the perspective lines and make the United States section appear as long as possible. Even if we are limited in space, we are bound to make the most of what we have, and by a little innocent optical illusion "make," as the Parisians say, "the sausage look as big as possible!"

LOUIS.

KILLED BY AN ELEPHANT.—Jerry Huckstep, an elderly colored man, living near Liberty Mills, Va., has met a singular and terrible death. The show of John Robinson was moving from Orange Court House to Madison Court House, headed by several elephants. The old man was attracted by the procession, and going the caravan was attacked by one of the elephants and crushed to death. His body was shockingly mutilated and death was almost instantaneous. When overtaken by the vicious beast the old man was on his way to work and had his dinner in his pocket. It is supposed the elephant sniffed the lunch and attacked and killed the man to get it, as no provocation was offered.

EX-JUDGE GLEESON, a practicing lawyer of Baltimore, and his adopted son, aged 18 years, retired to their room on Sunday night, and it is supposed thoughtlessly blew out the gas. Monday they were discovered in an insensible condition, the young man dying in a short time. The Judge is not expected to live.

A WALK AROUND THE WORLD.—James Henderson, of Toronto, starts May 1st, to walk a distance equal to the earth's circumference, proposing to cover forty miles each working day for two years, to receive ten thousand dollars, if he accomplishes his task.

THE attention of the traveling public is respectfully invited to some of the merits of this great highway, in the confident assertion and belief that no other line can offer equal inducements as a route of travel. In stands confessedly at the head of American railways. The track is double the entire length of the line, of steel rails laid on heavy oak ties, which are embedded in a foundation of rock ballast eighteen inches in depth. All bridges are of iron or stone, and built upon the most approved plans. Its passenger cars, while eminently safe and substantial, are at the same time models of comfort and elegance.

THE

The Safety Appliances

in use on this line well illustrate the far-seeing and liberal policy of its management, in accordance with which the utility only of an improvement and not its cost has been the question of consideration. Among many may be noticed forming in conjunction with a perfect double track and road-bed a combination of safeguards against accidents which have rendered them practically impossible.

The Block System of Safety Signals, Janney Coupler, Buffer and Platform, The Wharton Patent Switch;

AND THE

FARM AND HOUSE.

MANURING CORN.

Manuring corn in the hill has the effect on poor soil of pushing the crop forward in the start. Hog manure in particular will do this. The effect is quite wonderful, but it gradually disappears, and in the fall, when the crop is gathered, little if any difference is seen between the manured and unmanured land. It is a permanent impression that is wanted, and this will be the better secured by applying the manure broadcast. The reason of this will be seen when it is considered that the roots of the corn after it has grown, spread out in all directions, occupying with a net-work the whole extent of the ground. Hence the benefit of working the ground, as also of broadcast manuring. This explains why working between the rows, and leaving unstirred the soil in immediate or near contact with the hills, proves a success. It also explains why corn thrives upon sod; the sod is everywhere, feeding the roots as they extend.

Manure, however, has a benefit when applied in the hill. It will attract or furnish moisture and give increased force to the plant, thus favoring it in a drouth and starting it the sooner, just as any rich ground will do. The better way is to follow the plow with an evenly spread coat of manure, giving time enough to wash out the soluble parts before planting, where sod is turned down for manure, and the surface soil needs a stimulant to start the seed. The better way, however, is to turn down the sod early enough and to follow with a coat of manure or some fertilizer, as corn will do better for the increased richness, there being sufficient at the surface to start well the crop without our manuring in the hill. Thus there will be well-sustained growth from the time of planting to the end of the season, the increase of fertility securing an increase of yield, and a better preparation of our land for the crops that are to follow. Besides, the high condition of the land will, in a measure, be a guard against the mishaps of the season.

F. G.

THE AGE AND TEETH OF CATTLE.—The Agricultural Gazette, of London, has published some illustrated articles in reference to the age of cattle, as indicated by their teeth, which an American paper says confirms the observations made by the late Dr. Martin of Kentucky, upwards of forty years ago. He was then breeding short-horns, and one of his neighbors having been unjustly accused of deception in stating the ages of his improved animals, Dr. Martin began the inspection of his own and several other herds, and after a thorough sifting of the whole matter, he ascertained that as short horn cattle mature so much earlier than natives, their teeth keep pace with this, and at two and three years old will generally show the same marks as the unimproved cattle of the country at the age of four and five years. The Gazette gives instances of a still greater difference. "The permanent dentition," it says, "is often completed in bulls of the most advanced type, at three years of age, instead of five or six years, according to the old standard." It is believed this will hold good in the case of sheep, pigs, and other kinds of animals.—Rural World.

SETTING HENS.—Put a tablespoonful of sulphur in the nest as soon as hens or turkeys are set. The heat of the fowls causes the fumes of the sulphur to penetrate every part of their bodies, every louse is killed, and, as all nits are hatched within ten days, when the mother leaves the nest with her brood she is perfectly free from nits or lice. It is convenient to have two hens hatching at the same time, since, if accidents happen, the two broods may be united. Again, on the hatching day it frequently occurs that, to prevent the newly born chicks being crushed by eggs that are behind time, it is desirable to give all that are hatched to one hen, while the other takes charge of the eggs alone. Not only does this give security to the chicks, who run some hazard of being crushed, if they are kept for any prolonged time under the mother; but the unhatched eggs stand a far better chance. For when a hen finds chickens under her she sits higher from the eggs, and less warmth is afforded them at the time they require most.

ABOUT SEED CORN.—In shelling corn for seed, discard the butts and tips, using only the central portion of each ear, as the early blade and root are in size in proportion to the kernel used, and a plant from the large grains of the centre of the ear will get the start and keep ahead of the smaller ones from the tip. This is not all theory, but the result of my experiments with seed from the different portions of the ear—tips producing as a rule much smaller ears than butts or central ones, butts producing many one-sided, deformed ears and not filling out well. My opinion is, if every farmer would be more careful about his seed corn, the corn crop would amount to many thousands of bushels more in the United States.

PLANTING POTATOES.—Some persons believe in potatoes whole; some cut them in quarters or halves, allowing them to lie a few days and dry, before planting. A few years ago I had just the eyes taken out singly and left to dry, and then planted one eye every ten inches in the row by pressing it down with my finger to a depth of nearly four inches. The ground being level, was so kept until the second cleaning, when the plow was run to throw the furrow toward the row of potatoes and leave it about one foot level across the top. From the single eyes I gathered a larger crop than from potatoes cut in halves and whole ones, the land and culture being the same.—Exchange.

LARGE CROP OF POTATOES.—Messrs. Westgate Bros., and Allander, planted on Grand Island, Solano county, Cal., last season 400 acres of potatoes, which yielded 2,125 tons of marketable potatoes, and about 400 tons of small ones. The average price for which they were sold was 1½ cents per pound for the main crop and $10 per ton for the small potatoes. This makes the receipts about $57,125. They raised the Humbolt Red principally, also the Early Rose and the Peach Blow.

JUDGE PEARSON, of Harrisburg, decides that supervisors are by law compelled to assess the usual road taxes immediately upon entering upon their duties, and that the books in which the assessments are made shall be open to the inspection of the tax payers, and that every man who chooses to do so may work out his road tax instead of paying it in money.

ONIONS.—Onions are far more nutritious than people are generally aware of, containing from twenty-five to thirty per cent. of gluten. It ranks as a food, in point of nutriment, with beans and peas. It is not merely as a relish, therefore, that we should eat this vegetable, but as a sustainer of bodily strength.

A COLONY of Swedes have purchased a large tract of land on the Blue Mountains, extending from the Delaware Water Gap to the Wind Gap, on which they propose to settle and devote their attention to raising and grazing goats, and from goats' milk they intend to manufacture sweitzer cheese.

KEEP stock off pastures while they are soft. The poaching will cost tenfold by summer, what the stock may get of the very early grass. There is nothing to gain, but much to lose, even if only the pasture is concerned. The feed will not be lost if allowed to grow a little longer.

POULTRY MANURE.—This is a valuable fertilizer, and may be used with most benefit to corn. It may be scattered in the hill at planting or afterwards spread about the hill upon the surface. It is well to mix it with an equal bulk of plaster.

FODDER CROPS for early use are to be put in as soon as possible. Make a succession of sowings, that the crops may follow each other every ten days.

NOTICE.

TO CONSUMERS

—OF—

LORILLARD TOBACCO.

The great celebrity of our Tin Tag Tobacco has caused many imitations thereof to be placed on the market, we therefore caution all Chewers against purchasing such imitations.

All dealers buying or selling other plug tobacco bearing a hard or metallic label, render themselves liable to the penalty of the law, and all persons violating our trade marks are punishable by fine and imprisonment. See Act of Congress, Aug. 14, 1876.

The genuine LORILLARD TIN TAG TOBACCO can be distinguished by a Tin Tag on each lump with the word LORILLARD stamped thereon.

Over 7,088 tons tobacco sold in 1877, and nearly 3,000 persons employed in factories.

Taxes paid Government in 1877 were about $3,500,000, and during the past 12 years, over $20,000,000.

These goods sold by all jobbers at manufacturers rates.

KANSAS LANDS!!

We own and control the Railway lands of TREGO COUNTY, KANSAS, about equally divided by the Kansas Pacific Railway, which are selling at an average of $3.25 per acre on easy terms of payment. Alternate sections of Government lands can be taken as homesteads by actual settlers.

These lands lie in the GREAT LIMESTONE BELT of Central Kansas, the best winter wheat producing district of the United States, yielding from 20 to 35 Bushels per Acre.

The average yearly rainfall in this county is nearly 33 inches per annum, one-third greater than in the much-extolled Arkansas Valley, which has a yearly rainfall of less than 23 inches per annum in the same longitude.

Stock-Raising and Wool-Growing are very Remunerative. The winters are short and mild. Stock will live all the year on grass! Living Streams and Springs are numerous. Pure water is found in wells from 20 to 60 feet deep. The Healthiest Climate in the World! No fever and ague there. No muddy or impassable roads. Plenty of fine building stone, lime and sand. These lands are being rapidly settled by the best class of Northern and Eastern people, and will so appreciate in value by the improvements now being made as to make their purchase at present prices one of the very best investments that can be made, aside from the profits to be derived from their cultivation. Members of our firm reside in WA-KEENEY, and will show lands at any time. A pamphlet, giving full information in regard to soil, climate, water supply, &c., will be sent free on request.

IMPORTANT

NOTICE!

HAVING disposed of the accumulated money on account of revival of business, the special notice reducing the rate of interest to 3 per cent. is cancelled, and advanced to 4 per cent. per annum and 5 per cent. for six months. We were, with the rest of judicious and well-managed moneyed institutions, compelled to reduce the rate for our safety and that of our depositors. The revival of business warrants an advance we think due our depositors, and therefore advance the rate for their benefit.

INVALIDS, DON'T DESPAIR!

THOUSANDS have found relief, and thousands will turn to this Medicine, after exhausting their purses and patience in search of health. Giddiness of the head, dullness of the mind, fetid breath, coated tongue, loss of appetite, pains and weakness in the stomach, enlargement of the liver, yellowness of the skin, constant fever and thirst, with a total disrelish for business, pleasure or any kind of employment. FAHRNEY'S PANACEA, if taken and persevered in for a few days, will remove this whole class of symptoms. The fluids of the body become pure, and mind clear, the stomach strengthened, the tongue clean, the appetite improved, and the whole system benefitted, that disease, in bad weather, is less liable to afflict you.

TRADE Dr. P. FAHRNEY'S MARK

—CELEBRATED—

Blood Cleanser or Panacea.

As a medicine for children, the Panacea is in every way calculated to take the place of the endless variety of drugs which are annually sold for that purpose and which are often very injurious. A medicine which possesses the qualities of a cathartic as well as a mild alterative, and which is capable of arresting disease without the least injury to the child, is of incalculable value to every mother. As a cathartic, it is very effective, yet it does not, by any means, cause nausea or distress in the stomach or bowels. It is very pleasant to the taste, which is a very important matter as a medicine for children. As a preventive of disease it is unprecedented, as it acts directly upon the digestive organs and the blood. In all scrofulous diseases, it is the most effective medicine ever offered to the public; and, if given regularly and perseveringly, those eruptive diseases so common to children may be entirely eradicated.

Prepared by P. Fahrney's Bros. & Co., Waynesboro', Pa., and Dr. P. FAHRNEY, 30 North Dearborn street, Chicago. For sale by wholesale and retail dealers, and by A. D. BUEHLER and J. M. HUBER, Gettysburg. Oct. 15, 1873. tf

AND DWELLING IN GETTYSBURG,

AT PRIVATE SALE.

THE undersigned, intending to remove to Lancaster, offers at Private Sale, his desirable BUSINESS STAND AND DWELLING, next door to the Eagle Hotel, on Chambersburg street, Gettysburg. The lot runs from the street to an alley on the north, and the improvements consist of a newly-built THREE-STORY BRICK HOUSE, with Brick Back-building, having a handsome Store Room on the first floor and parlors on the first and second floors, designed and used for an extensive Ice Cream and Confection business. The house is modern in style, of attractive appearance, substantial, roomy and convenient. It has an excellent cellar under the whole, and is supplied with water and gas. There is also a work shop and a large ICE HOUSE on the lot, both of recent erection.

So rare a chance for the purchase of a first-class business stand is not often presented—one so complete in all its parts, and commanding so large a trade.

Buyers are requested to call early and inspect the premises. Terms will be made easy, and possession given inside of thirty days.
